

LEARNING LEADERSHIP THROUGH THE GROUP

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING TO HELP YOU AND YOUR TEAM GROW

ABOUT

Tali has over ten years of experience as the Director of Mellem Education, where she has facilitated trainings in corporate and organizational settings. She has led workshops across Europe and the U.S. on leadership, change management, intercultural communication, conflict resolution, and diversity and inclusion. Tali holds a PhD in Management Learning from Copenhagen Business School.

TESTIMONIAL

"The workshop prompted us to look at ourselves in a new way. It was educational. You can get tired of smart consultants with PowerPoint presentations to train executives. Tali's approach is present and involves everyone in a new and inspiring way with focus on the participants." – Katja, Boligkontoret Danmark

TRAINING OFFERING

This leadership training engages participants in an innovative and creative way by allowing the group's natural dynamics to unfold. Rather than focusing on theories or strategies for better performance, each team member reflects on themselves and their interactions within the diverse group. The process is both enjoyable and meaningful, combining playfulness with self-reflection. It offers a rare opportunity to break free from everyday routines and habits, which are often overlooked in the fast pace of work life. Through group activities and playful exercises, participants can uncover unconscious patterns and disrupt unproductive behaviors. This approach fosters a more inclusive and positive workplace atmosphere, ultimately boosting well-being, job satisfaction, and productivity.
